

Reflection

Compared to sprint 1, sprint 2 had a noticeably higher velocity, and there were rarely any days where tasks weren't being completed. A large part of this increased velocity can be attributed to the fact that we've sorted through the initial challenges we encountered during sprint 1, such as project setup, creating schedules, and familiarizing ourselves with the software needed to manage and track our progress. Aside from the setup, the only other change was better communication between group members, which helps us be more efficient and intentional with standups.
